125th Street Named "Road to Economy" As Carnival Opens

Nine-Day Celebration Will Be Held Under Auspices of Harlem Board of Commerce in Honor of Event

As the shades of night descended upon Harlem last night, 125th Street was bathed in a sheet of light from Third Avenue to the river. There was singing and speech-making and dancing. It was nothing less than the opening of the nine days' carnival to commemorate the renaming of 125th Street to "The Road to Economy."

The name was settled upon some weeks ago as the result of a contest for a suitable commercial slogan for the thoroughfare.

It was a wonder night for the kids. The incandescent electric bulbs, strung across the street, attracted them to the scene of the merry-making, and their shouts of joy added to the happiness of the scene. Strains of many songs filled the air. June Elvidge led the crowd in singing the "Star-Spangled Banner."

The street's new slogans, "The Road to Economy" and "A City in Itself," adorned the walls and shop windows of the street. A decorated bandstand occupied the corner at Seventh Avenue, where Keith's Boys' Band gave a concert. There was a concert also by the Catholic Protective Band. Now and then the Firemen's Inner Seal Band gave added joy to the occasion, and the Azim Grotto Band contributed "jazz" at frequent intervals.

Tuesday night Harlem will revel in a Mardi Gras parade, with prizes amounting to $300 for various costumes of artistic and original type. The parade Thursday evening. But this does not mean that 125th Street will not be the mecca of merry-makers on all other nights of the carnival.

The celebration is under the auspices of the Harlem Board of Commerce.

Union Hours Curtail Tips On Mauretania

Stewards' Refusal to Aid in Arranging Saloon for Ball Remembered by Passengers Arriving Here

Lady Geddes Returns

Ambassador's Wife Taken Off at Quarantine to Avoid Irish Pickets

Splitting hairs over union hours on the run across the Atlantic from Southampton served as a blemish on the Mauretania yesterday, when cabin passengers came ashore with remarkably poor memories for tipping. Many travelers, who are accustomed to tipping liberally, took exception to the small policy of unionism displayed aboard the vessel and shaved their libel down to the minimum.

On Wednesday night the saloon passengers arranged for a dance to be held in the dining room and a request was made to have the tables removed for the festivities. The ship's officers, who joined in the merrymaking were informed by the stewards that "it was after union hours" and they declined to remove the tables.

The passengers, assisted by the officers of the Mauretania, did the work themselves and after the dance replaced the tables. The incident lingered in the minds of the travelers yesterday when the tipping hour arrived and the punctilious stewards were the losers. The thought of impression upon the ship's officers and it is understood that the customary entertainment for the stewards and their friends will be eliminated while the vessel is in port.

Privileges Are Withdrawn

The company has permitted the stewards to spend their leisure time aboard ship entertaining their friends from shore, but the privilege will be withheld as a return for the refusal of the men to be agreeable Wednesday night.

The trip of the liner across the Atlantic was unusually serene. Light breezes and a smooth sea prevailed. After passing Nantucket Lightship the Mauretania encountered fog, but came through it without difficulty.

When she dropped anchor off Quarantine yesterday the Coast Guard cutter Manhattan was sent down the bay with several representatives of the British embassy and the State Department to greet Lady Geddes, wife of Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador, who was returning with her children.

As the Geddes's baggage had the free accorded to the families of all diplomats, it was soon transferred from the Mauretania to the Manhattan, and with it Lady Geddes and her suite were brought up to the city and landed at the Battery. The party was then driven to the Pennsylvania station, where it was enquired for Washington aboard the special car "Pilgrim."

Avoid Anti-British Display

It is said that the transfer of Lady Geddes at Quarantine was a precautionary measure of the State Department to spare her from any anti-British demonstration at the Cunard pier, and agitators heeded members of the Sulgrave Institution who arrived several days ago on the Cunarder Carmania.

Miss Frieda Hempel, the coloratura soprano, who had been abroad several months climbing the Alps and avoiding sweets to reduce her weight, returned on the Mauretania. She will sing in concert and with the New York Symphony Orchestra before joining the Chicago Opera Company at its season at the Manhattan Opera House. Miss Hempel expressed much interest in her forthcoming appearance at Carnegie Hall as the leading soloist of the Jenny Lind memorial concert. Miss Hempel brought with her a replica of the gown worn by the famous "Swedish Nightingale," which was copied, she said, from the original in Paris. The bodice is made of old ivory satin adorned with needle work of blue flowers. The crinoline skirt is new to Miss Hempel, she said.

Relief Official Returns

Charles V. Vickery, general secretary of the Near East Relief, returned after an inspection trip through Armenia. He said that at least a half million Armenians living to-day would have perished had it not been for American philanthropy. Since the armistice he said, Europe has deserted her Asiatic Allies and the Armenians are still compelled to fight single-handed her enemies on four sides. If the Allies would assist her in repelling her enemies, he said she would quickly regain her powers of full self-support and become one of the most enterprising and prosperous nations in the Near East.

Among others on the Mauretania were: The Right Rev. James H. Darrington, Protestant Episcopal bishop of Pennsylvania; J. B. Thomas, Dr. G. Huntington Williams, Samuel Seabury, former judge of the Court of Appeals; W. M. Lettis, and Louis D. Beaumont.

Japanese Soprano's Charm Atones for Vocal Limitations

Miss Nobuko Hara Gives Fascinating Performance as Madame Butterfly Despite Her Light Voice

MANHATTAN OPERA HOUSE—San Carlo Opera Company in Puccini's "Madame Butterfly."

Interest in yesterday afternoon's performance of "Madame Butterfly" centered in a new butterfly, Miss Nobuko Hara, of Japan. According to the program, it was her first appearance in America. She is the second Japanese soprano to sing the part here in recent years, and, in its way, her interpretation is as interesting and as touching as that of her predecessor, Mme. Takaki Miura.

Miss Hara's voice is very light. The middle tones are a bit thin, almost child-like in quality. The extreme upper notes are rounder, richer in color, more resonant. She sang with intelligence and taste, not forcing her voice, realizing her limitations. And however limited in vocal power, Miss Hara's conception of the part was far more interesting than that of many other singers who rely chiefly upon tonal wealth. In her acting the Japanese soprano was constantly fascinating. The grace of her undulating walk, her business with the fan, the daintiness with which she used her hands, her lack of mannerisms, her sincerity, were but a few features of a delightful performance.

Mr. Valle's Sharpless and Miss de Mette's Suzuki were conspicuously good, among the impersonations contributed by other members of the cast.

Last evening the opera was "Il Trovatore," with Miss Freeman and Miss Gentile, Mr. Agostini and Mr. Ballester.

Auto Victim Provided For Disaster in Will

Dr. McGuire Outlined Distribution of $250,000 Estate in Case of Sudden Death

The will of Dr. George H. McGuire, Bronx physician, who, with his wife, daughter and son were killed in an automobile accident on September 12 at Dobbs Ferry, was filed in the Bronx Surrogate's Court yesterday. The estate of Dr. McGuire is estimated at $250,000.

The will contained a clause telling the manner in which the testator wanted his estate distributed in case he and his wife died in an accident. This clause read:

"Should my wife predecease me or should we die at or about the same time by reason of an accident or disaster or calamity, it is my wish that my estate be disposed of as provided in the event of her death."

Under the will, Frank McGuire, another son of the testator, who is convalescing in St. Luke's Hospital, is the only member of the family to survive the accident, receives the greater part of the estate. Two nephews receive $500 each and two Catholic institutions $250 each.

The temperature will be considerably lower Monday morning in the region of the Great Lakes and the Ohio and lower Mississippi valleys.

Temperatures will not change materially in the Eastern and Southeastern states.

District Forecasts.—New England, Eastern New York—Fair Sunday and probably Monday; not much change in temperature.

Western New York—Fair Sunday; Monday unsettled, with somewhat lower temperature.
